Standard of Identity (SOI)

The FDA has defined what may be called "chocolate" by a set of rules found in the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR). All pertinent information regarding the legal standard of chocolate may be found in the CFR Title 21, part 163, Cacao Products.

Nutritive carbohydrate sweeteners are a key component to what does or does not make a product conform to the SOI. While "nutritive carbohydrate sweetener" is not defined by the FDA, it is a sweetener that is a carbohydrate and has a caloric value.

Such ingredients include:

- Sugar
- Lactose
- Allulose
- Honey

What is NOT allowed?

Any ingredient used outside the outlined required or optional ingredients listed above would mean the product cannot be considered "chocolate" but rather compound/confectionery coating.

These include:

- Proteins
- Fibers like inulin, FOS, dextrin, or polydextrose
- Sugar alcohols like erythritol, maltitol, or isomalt
- High intensity sweeteners like sucralose, monk fruit, or stevia
- Vegetable fats like palm kernel oil, palm oil, coconut oil, or soybean oil.

Survey Results

We had a third party survey 1000 consumers to find out what they think about reduced and sugar free chocolate products.

When asked what candy bar product(s) they would purchaseconsumers prefer a "real" chocolate bar over a chocolate flavored bar.

TASTE is the key driver

Taste was a key driver when consumers were asked what is most important when buying a chocolate candy product?

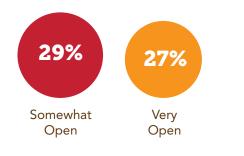

73%

In addition to taste, consumers will pick up a NEW product when it looks good.

56% of those surveyed were open to eating reduced or sugar free chocolate candy

57% of consumers are somewhat or very interested in keto chocolate.

Big box store shoppers: How interested are you in keto chocolate products?

Keto

On the keto diet, practitioners will maintain a caloric balance of 5% net carbohydrates (under 20g/day), around 75% fat, and around 20% protein.

under 20 grams

Liquor, milk powder, and even protein contribute to the total and net carb number on the nutrition facts panel whereas fat, erythritol, fiber, and sweeteners are net zero carbohydrate ingredients and may even lower the net carbohydrate number.

Erythritol, which is a sugar alcohol, is important to call out as keto-friendly. It is the only sugar alcohol that is considered ketogenic because it has a low glycemic index; maltitol has too high a glycemic index for the keto diet.

Oslo Gold Drops

Oslo Gold was formulated for a highimpact chocolate flavor with all of the cocoa mass coming from Liquor, including West African liquor with flavor notes from special roasting.
